

Resources on Government and the Supreme Court

Crash Course (<https://www.youtube.com/user/crashcourse>) has some great video series. They are both entertaining and information-dense. We have watched some of the episodes about the United States government (including the ones about the Supreme Court), all of the economics and astronomy videos, and some on chemistry. (My kids are 10, 11, and 13.)

This a great, entertaining site for learning civics (all three branches are covered) :

<https://www.icivics.org/>

Supreme Court:

<https://www.icivics.org/games/supreme-decision>

<https://www.icivics.org/teachers>

Students learn while playing games. It is founded and led by Justice Sandra Day O'Connor.